“CHILDREN AND WAR” TRAININGS HELD IN ODESA AND MYKOLAYIV WITHIN PHASE IV OF THE “HELPING HAND FOR UKRAINE” PROJECT

Kyiv, November 08, 2016 – The team of trainers-psychologists of “HOPE worldwide Ukraine” charity foundation held “Children and War. Teaching Recovery Techniques” trainings in Odesa and Mykolayiv for local psychologists and social workers. The trainings are part of educational and therapeutic activities planned within Phase IV of the “Helping Hand for Ukraine” Project, implemented by “HOPE worldwide Ukraine” charity foundation with financial support of “HOPE worldwide” (USA) and “HOPE worldwide Canada” charitable organisations during September-December 2016.

The training in Odesa took place on October 17-19, 2016. 22 psychologists, psychotherapists, psychology students from Odesa National Mechnykov University, educators and volunteers participated in the training. Organisational support was provided by local partner organization – NGO “Assembly of Peace and Creativity”. Currently, children and parents groups are formed to participate in “Children and War. Teaching Recovery Techniques” therapy sessions. The sessions will be held by training participants. In addition, “Children and War” programme will be used as part of curriculum of the “School of Kindness” launched by local partner organisations.

The training in Mykolayiv took place on October 21-23, 2016. 18 child psychologists, practicing psychologists and volunteers participated in the training. The training was held in Mykolayiv Regional Centre for Tourism with support from City Education and Science Department and local partner – “Blaha Diya” (Good Deed) Charity Foundation. Training participants have already planned “Children and War” therapy courses for internally displaced children and parents (IDPs) in schools where they work.

The next training events within Phase IV of the project are to take place in November – in Dnipro, Izmail, Ivano-Frankivsk and Drohobych.

Serhiy Ivanov, student at Odesa National Mechnykov University, training participant: “The issue of mental health is very urgent for our society. Internally displaced persons, ATO soldiers who came back home after difficult challenges, children who saw war... Their psychological traumas can be very dangerous for all society. Therefore they need specialized assistance to be able to cope with destructive emotional stances, to live in harmony in new communities in peace and calmness. “Children and War. Teaching Recovery Techniques” training prepares experts to give such urgent assistance to people who need it. It provides us with real tools for assistance – techniques to work with trauma. The training structure was very clear and fostered high quality of training for participants. We already formed a team and plan to hold “Children and War” therapy sessions for children and parents IDPs in our city”.

Maryna Ivanenko, psychologist, training participant: “Thanks to the training I was able to refresh my knowledge and practices and receive useful theoretic and practical experience, new techniques of coping with fears. Nowadays this is very important due to war in our country. During the training I discovered my own fear which I was not aware of. Thanks to practical exercises the participants could learn how these techniques worked. These practical tools are very efficient: a person who knows how to use them can cope with own fears. Now I want to share this knowledge so that children and parents learn how to use these tools and techniques”.
